Yeovil College Scores Highly In Government Satisfaction Survey

The latest results from the government's Employer Satisfaction Survey, carried out by Ipsos MORI on behalf of the Skills Funding Agency, have shown that Yeovil College's overall employer satisfaction has scored one of the highest in the country.

This fantastic result is based on survey responses from over 180 employers locally and regionally for whom Yeovil College has delivered training funded by the Skills Funding Agency, either wholly or in part.

Andrew Livingston, CEO at Screwfix, said, "As a business committed to supporting the trade, and a large employer in Yeovil, Screwfix are delighted that Yeovil College has scored 89% in this year's Employer Satisfaction Survey. We're working on some great initiatives with Yeovil College which highlight the importance of trade apprenticeships and what a career within the trade industry can offer."

Yeovil College scored well across a range of areas including professionalism of staff, flexibility in meeting the employer's needs and the overall efficiency of their dealings with the College. The vast majority of employers would recommend the College to another employer.

Mark Bolton, Director of Employer Engagement at Yeovil College, said: "We are all really pleased and excited with these results that reflect the hard work and effort everyone at the College has put in. We pride ourselves on the high quality of our training and on our ability to support and advise, so we're thrilled that that's been reflected in the employer's formal feedback."

"It's important to us to work with local employers and provide them with the skills they need to meet the demands of their businesses, and in doing so, we're facilitating the growth of the local economy."
