

Yeovil College learners record primary school play for project

Yeovil College Media learners recorded the Charlie and the Chocolate Factory play for Countess Gytha Primary School, Queen Camel, for a work experience project.

The media learners used the college blue screen in order to record scenes from Charlie and the Chocolate Factory film.

Toby Dudden, 18, formerly of Westfield Academy, said, “From working on this project, I have managed a production team and directed a large class of school learners to record Charlie and the Chocolate Factory. This will help me when I hopefully work in the Media sector going forward.”

Callum Reeve, 17, formerly of Stanchester Academy, said, “I learnt how to manage, communicate with different age groups and how to keep on track with the various tasks involved.”

Charlotte Guest, Key Stage 1 Lead, said, “It’s a great opportunity for the children to visit a college and meet the learners. The children were excited to attend Yeovil College for the experience of being at a college.”

The media learners made a corporate video as a project for Countess Gytha Primary School. This promotes the old site being moved, including the memories captured by the children and staff at the school.
